BIO

Chaplain Bruce Feldstein, MD, BCC is Adjunct Clinical Professor at Stanford University School of Medicine and Emeritus Founder and Director of JFCS Jewish Chaplaincy Services serving Stanford Medicine. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan Medical School. After specializing in emergency medicine for 19 years, an injury led him to a deeper sense of his life's work, as a chaplain.

Bruce was a visiting scholar at the Stanford Center for Biomedical Ethics and completed his chaplaincy training in 2000 in Stanford's Clinical Pastoral Education program. He developed and teaches an award-winning curriculum on spirituality and well-being for medical students and faculty at Stanford School of Medicine, and heads the Stanford Lifestyle Medicine pillar on Gratitude and Reflection.

Chaplain Dr. Feldstein received the John Templeton Spirituality and Medicine Curricular Award and was the first recipient of the Isaac Stein Award for Compassionate Care presented by the Stanford Health Care Board of Directors. He is recognized as a Board Certified Chaplain by Neshama: Association of Jewish Chaplains, the professional association for Jewish chaplains worldwide, where he was a past president. He has taught and published widely.
