Stanford

Brian Ring

Graduate, Stanford Distinguished Careers Institutes

Bio

BIO

Dr. Brian Ring received his PhD in molecular biology and genetics from Cornell University and completed his post-doctoral training at Stanford University School of Medicine.

Dr. Ring is an experienced bioinformatics leader with many years in oncology-focused research and diagnostics, including the development of several clinically utilized gene expression-based companion diagnostics. He has also been the CSO and founder of multiple companies operating in the health field.

Currently, Dr. Ring is an affiliate in the school of Medicine - Med/Stanford Prevention Research Center.