Stanford

Peter Samuel Moon

Lecturer, Law Teaching

Bio

BIO

Peter Moon is privacy and security counsel at Roblox Corporation, where he serves as a privacy expert on technology transactions. He regularly advises engineering, regulatory, product, and compliance teams on global privacy strategy and the evolving regulatory landscape.

Peter began his legal career at Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, where his practice focused on technology M&A, venture financing, and capital markets. While there, he served as a privacy, AI, and cybersecurity specialist for corporate transactions.

Peter earned his J.D. from Stanford Law School, serving as a lead editor of the Stanford Technology Law Review and as a student attorney in the Juelsgaard Intellectual Property and Innovation Clinic. He received his B.A. in Economics, Phi Beta Kappa, from Stanford University. A dedicated member of the Stanford community, Peter currently serves as an alumni interviewer for the undergraduate admissions program and is a member of the State Bar of California.

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS

- Lecturer, Law Teaching

Teaching

COURSES

2026-27

- Advanced Legal Writing: Privacy Transactions: LAW 7864 (Aut)

2025-26

- Advanced Legal Writing: High-Tech Transactions: LAW 7850 (Spr)

Publications

PUBLICATIONS

- Reevaluating the role of IDO1: Examining NAD+ metabolism in inflammation Journal of Neuroimmunology
  Moon, P. K., Minhas, P. S.
  2017; 307: 31-32