BIO

Dr. Milstein is a Professor of Medicine and directs the Clinical Excellence Research Center at Stanford University. The Center discovers and demonstrates in multi-state locations scalable innovations in clinical process and in bedside applications of machine intelligence that lower the cost of high-quality healthcare.

Before joining Stanford's faculty, he created and globalized a healthcare performance improvement firm, co-founded three nationally influential public benefit initiatives including the Leapfrog Group, served as a Congressional MedPAC Commissioner and was elected to the National Academy of Medicine (NAM).

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS

• Professor, Medicine - Primary Care and Population Health

LINKS

• Clinical Excellence Research Center: http://cerc.stanford.edu
• Partnership in AI-assisted Care: https://aicare.stanford.edu/

Research & Scholarship

CURRENT RESEARCH AND SCHOLARLY INTERESTS

Design and national demonstration of innovations in care delivery that provide more with less. Informed by research on AI-assisted clinical workflow, positive value outlier analysis and triggers of loss aversion bias among patients and clinicians.

Research on creation of a national index of health system productivity gain.
