

Christy Hartman

Adm Svcs Admstr 1, School of Medicine - Biomedical Ethics

Bio

BIO

Christy Hartman is the Program Manager for Medical Humanities and Arts at the Stanford School of Medicine.

A long-time podcast producer for the Stanford Storytelling Project, 2011-2021, Christy mentored Braden Grant recipients, co-taught narrative storytelling and podcast production workshops. Later, she founded Medical Humanities Story Lab with the Stanford Health Library for the Stanford healthcare community. She sometimes teaches at the intersection of myth, nature, and metaphor.

Her personal essays, opinion pieces, and fiction have been published in Souvenir Lit Journal, About Place Journal, the Stanford Daily, and in the book, Aftermath: Explorations of Loss & Grief. Her solo show, "Wolf Teeth" debuted in San Francisco in April, 2024.

CURRENT ROLE AT STANFORD

Program Manager, Medical Humanities and the Arts Program