Katherine Walwyn-Brown
Postdoctoral Research Fellow, Structural Biology

Bio

Dr. Walwyn-Brown is a post-doctoral scholar in the Parham lab, where she investigates how genetic diversity impacts on the function of Natural Killer cells during pregnancy and immune responses to infection.

Professional Education

- Bachelor of Science, University Of York (2014)
- Doctor of Philosophy, University of Manchester (2018)

Publications

- Human NK Cells Lyse Th2-Polarizing Dendritic Cells via NKp30 and DNAM-1. Journal of Immunology
  Walwyn-Brown, K., Guldevall, K., Saeed, M., Pende, D., Onfelt, B., MacDonald, A. S., Davis, D. M.
  2018; 201 (7): 2028–41