Stanford

David I Epstein

Affiliate, Program-Sahami, M.

Bio

BIO

Dave is an advisor at Epstein Advisors, a managing director at USF Ventures, and an adjunct lecturer/professor at various universities. Recently, he was the Exedutive Director of the Susilo Institute for Ethics in the Global Economy and Lecturer at Boston University Questrom School of Business. A champion of ethical, social, and environmental awareness, he has taught ethics and the societal impacts of technology alongside entrepreneurship and finance at BU, Stanford, UC Berkeley, USF, and more. Previously, Dave has been a VC and startup CEO, having founded or led seven startups and now serves as an angel investor and CEO coach. He began his career as a computer designer, featured in Soul of a New Machine. Having been a Distinguished Careers Institute Fellow at Stanford, he is active in AI, cleantech, healthcare, and socially responsible ventures and on serves on advisory boards. Dave and his wife Sarah support ethics in engineering and global health initiatives at the University of Wisconsin.