

Stanford

Leila Hozhabrzadeh, PA-C, MPH

 Curriculum Vitae available Online

Professional Overview

BIO

Leila Hozhabrzadeh is a physician assistant who received her joint MSPAS/MPH degree from Touro University California. She has always had an interest in Women's Health and received extensive OB/GYN training through both her general and elective clinical rotations. Her public health field study included participating in research for a longitudinal study on Cervical, Anal, and Oral HPV Prevalence and Risk Factors Among Adolescents at Mount Sinai Adolescent Health Center in Manhattan, NY. Prior to PA school, she worked as a medical assistant and scribe in Obstetrics and Gynecology for Dr. Tha's Aliabadi at Cedars Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles. She practices evidence-based and patient-centered medicine to improve health and wellness. She is also Safe Zone trained and dedicated to providing compassionate care that ensures patient dignity. In addition, she is fluent in Farsi and intermediate in Spanish.

CLINICAL FOCUS

- Physician Assistant
- Gynecology
- Women's Health

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

- Professional Education: Touro University California (2019) CA
- Board Certification: Physician Assistant, National Commission on Certification of Physician Assistants (2019)
- Master of Public Health, Touro University California , Public Health (2019)