Bio

Shawna Follis, PhD, MS, is a postdoctoral research fellow at the Stanford Prevention Research Center. Dr. Follis is a social epidemiologist researching social determinants of health, race/ethnic health disparities, body composition, and aging.

HONORS AND AWARDS

• Aetna Award for Excellence in Research on Older Women and Public Health, American Public Health Association (October 2020)

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

• Doctor of Philosophy, University of Arizona (2020)
• Master of Science, Purdue University (2014)
• Bachelor of Arts, Indiana-Purdue University, Fort Wayne (2012)

Publications

PUBLICATIONS

• Association Between Sarcopenic Obesity and Falls in a Multiethnic Cohort of Postmenopausal Women. Journal of the American Geriatrics Society

2018