

Peiqi Chen, MA

Social Science Research Professional 1, Stanford-Surgery Policy Improvement Research and Education Center

Bio

BIO

Peiqi Chen, M.A., B.A., is a Social Science Research Professional at the S-SPIRE Center. With a bachelor's degree in Sociology and Psychology, and a certificate in non-profit organization management from the University of Iowa. Followed by a master's degree in Social Sciences from the University of Chicago, Peiqi has developed a robust knowledge and skill set in various research methodologies and research tools. In her MA program in Social Science at the University of Chicago and writing a thesis about family planning policy evaluation on women's maternity rights. At S-SPIRE, she assists clinical researchers with qualitative data gathering and analysis. Before attending Stanford, she completed two internships at nonprofit organizations. She conducted research on social stigma toward COVID19 patient and front-line health workers during the pandemic. Her research interests lie in sexual health, the evaluation of policy outcomes, and the improvement of social welfare for underrepresented populations.