Stanford

Aminah McBryde-Redzovic

Contingent OTP 1, Psych/Public Mental Health & Population Sciences

Bio

BIO

Dr. Aminah Mcbryde-Redzovic holds a PhD in Community Health Sciences from the University of Illinois, Chicago, and a Master's in Public Health from the University at Buffalo. Her research focuses broadly on the mental health of racial, ethnic, and religious minorities, with a focus on Muslim Americans. Her dissertation examines the mental health consequences of singlism, or singlehood stigma, among unmarried Muslims living in North America, specifically at the intersection of race, age, and gender. She serves as the senior research associate for the Stanford Muslim Mental Health and Islamic Psychology Lab led by Dr. Rania Awaad and is also an Assistant Professor of public health and nutrition at Benedictine University.

CURRENT ROLE AT STANFORD

Senior Research Associate | Stanford Muslim Mental Health and Islamic Psychology Lab