

Aidan Houston

Juris Doctor Student, Law

Bio

BIO

Aidan is a student at Stanford Law School. Before starting law school, he worked at the United States Institute of Peace advising the U.S. government on international conflict dynamics. After living and volunteering in Ukraine from 2014-17, he developed an interest in conflict resolution in Eastern Europe. He previously studied at Harvard University, obtaining master's degrees from the Kennedy School of Government and the Divinity School. Aidan's work and research focuses on international law, international conflict, and legal theory. He also maintains a strong interest in economic policy both domestic and international.

EDUCATION AND CERTIFICATIONS

- MPP, Harvard University , International Affairs (2023)
- MTS, Harvard University , Ethics (2023)