Stanford

Maggie Poulos

Ph.D. Student in Environment and Resources, admitted Autumn 2023

Bio

BIO

Maggie is a PhD student in Stanford University's E-IPER Program interested in intersectional equity and blue justice through the lens of marine resource management in Kenya and Tanzania. In exploring resource access and collective action through local governance mechanisms, she studies the motivations behind and challenges to diverse participation in local marine governance, as well as opportunities for encouraging gendered inclusion. Through a co-production of knowledge framework and related field research tools, Maggie aims to co-create applied research that makes marine policy a more diverse and equitable space for local and Indigenous communities. Before her time at Stanford, Maggie earned a Master of Public Policy from Duke University and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and International Studies from Macalester College.

Research & Scholarship

LAB AFFILIATIONS

- Larry Crowder (9/26/2023)
- Krish Seetah (9/26/2023)