

Stanford

Jacqueline Erin Shanley

Affiliate, Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences

Bio

BIO

Jacqueline is a psychology doctoral student in the PGSP-Stanford PsyD Consortium Program. She has multiple years of experience working in healthcare settings; she has both worked with patients who have autoimmune conditions and varying forms of dementia, alongside their families. Her research and clinical interests include health psychology, women's health, and relationships science.