Stanford

Joshua Abrams

Affiliate, Vice Provost and Dean of Research - Research Compliance

Bio

BIO

Joshua Abrams is a research assistant in the Division of Immunology & Rheumatology, Department of Medicine at Stanford University, working with William H. Robinson, M.D., Ph.D. dating to June 2024. Joshua is a B.A. Candidate in Biological Sciences - Computational Biology at Columbia University (CC'29) where he is a member of the Columbia Undergraduate Scholars Program (Science Research Fellow 2025-2029). He has been involved in molecular immunology/computational biology research in the Robinson Lab examining microbial triggers of autoimmune disease and the role of B cells and antibodies in autoimmune disease pathogenesis.