BIO

Jessica Ann is a program designer and creative technologist with 10+ years of experience leading initiatives that integrate emerging technologies into education and community learning spaces. As Manager of the AI Tinkery at the Stanford Accelerator for Learning, she led the launch of Stanford's first cross-functional hub for AI literacy and upskilling — supporting peer-driven learning, responsible experimentation, and practical use of generative AI tools across diverse educational and operational teams. Jessica holds an MFA in Art + Technology from The Ohio State University and is passionate about building programs that advance equity, foster collaboration, and empower communities to shape the future with AI.
