

Stanford

Danielle Gensch

State, Local, and International Government Information Librarian, Social Sciences Resource Group

Bio

BIO

Danielle supports research and preserves information produced about and by government agencies at the state, local, and international level. She assists with data and information resources from the State of California, school districts, transportation agencies, cities, counties, the United Nations, European Union, Organisation for Economic Co-Operation and Development (OECD), and other international governmental organizations (IGOs). She was an attorney for 23 years, representing government agencies, institutional investors, and non-profits in real estate and infrastructure transactions. Prior to law school, she was a transportation planner in the Washington, D.C. region.

CURRENT ROLE AT STANFORD

State, Local, & International Government Information Librarian; Social Sciences Resource Group

EDUCATION AND CERTIFICATIONS

- MLIS, San Jose State University , Library and Information Science (2024)
- JD, University of Michigan Law School , Law (1999)
- BS, Cornell University , Civil Engineering (1995)

Professional

PROFESSIONAL AFFILIATIONS AND ACTIVITIES

- Rare and Endangered Government Publications, American Library Association, Government Documents Roundtable (GODORT) (2025 - present)
- Legislation Committee, American Library Association, Government Documents Roundtable (GODORT) (2023 - present)