BIO

Bria Schraeder is a Product Manager for the Understand Energy program at the Precourt Institute for Energy. In this role, she supports the development and management of educational content across various platforms, including the Understand Energy class, workshop series, Learning Hub, staff seminar, and newsletters. She also works on marketing and outreach efforts to expand the program's reach and impact.

Bria also supports communications at the Precourt Institute for Energy, writing for Stanford Energy's social media channels, newsletter, and feature articles.

In her free time, Bria enjoys recipe testing, watercolor painting, and long hikes and cycling.
