

Henry Francis Isselbacher

Research Administrator, School of Medicine - Biomedical Ethics

Bio

BIO

Henry Isselbacher is a Research Administrator at the Stanford Center for Biomedical Ethics. He graduated from the University of California, Berkeley, in May 2024 with a degree in Economics and Public Health, earning honors in Public Health for his senior thesis titled "Vacancy Rates in US Hospitals with Workplace Violence Prevention Programs." As an undergraduate, Henry developed an extensive background in financial reporting and budgeting as CFO for UC Berkeley's student association and co-chair of several student fee committees. After graduating, Henry worked in the Division of Student Affairs at Cal as a Special Projects Coordinator, where he focused on efforts to streamline the accessibility and awareness of funding and other resources for students and student organizations.

EDUCATION AND CERTIFICATIONS

- B.A., University of California, Berkeley , Economics; Public Health (2024)