BIO

Brandon Bao is a student at Stanford University with a strong commitment to public service, interdisciplinary research, and community leadership. A former student-athlete and statewide youth advocate, he has served on the Washington State Legislative Youth Advisory Council—most recently as Director of Public Affairs—and as a Program Lead in the Gates Foundation Youth Ambassador Program, working on initiatives aligned with the UN Sustainable Development Goals. Brandon is also an International Baccalaureate graduate with academic interests spanning public policy (education and health equity), law, engineering, and environmental justice.
