

Palmer Feibelman

Postdoctoral Scholar, Ophthalmology

Bio

BIO

Palmer Feibelman studied biomedical engineering at Georgia Tech before earning his medical degree from the Medical College of Georgia. He went on to serve as a medical officer in the U.S. Navy, where he held the role of Medical Department Head at Navy Operational Support Center Washington, D.C., and later deployed as a flight surgeon with Marine F/A-18 squadron VMFA-232. Following his military service, he pursued ophthalmology training at Brown University, where he also continued to build on his engineering background. He is now the Ophthalmology Innovation Fellow at Stanford University for the 2025–2026 academic year.

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

- Doctor of Medicine, Medical College Of Georgia (2017)
- Bachelor of Science, Georgia Institute of Technology (2013)
- Residency, Brown University , Ophthalmology (2025)
- Intern, Walter Reed National Military Medical Center (2018)
- MD, Medical College of Georgia (2017)

STANFORD ADVISORS

- David Myung, Postdoctoral Faculty Sponsor