Postdoctoral Scholar, Education

BIO

Christina Hewko is a postdoctoral fellow in the Stanford Accelerator for Learning's Equity in Learning Initiative and Dr. Maisha T. Winn's Futuring for Equity Lab. In addition, she is a Stanford PRISM Baker Fellow. As an interdisciplinary education researcher, she draws on justice-oriented frameworks, the learning sciences, and teacher education to explore co-designed learning environments. She is especially interested in the joint activity and processes that support teachers' and community members' learning, well-being, and development of justice-oriented teaching practices. While at Stanford she is exploring possibilities for land-based pedagogies and teacher learning about restorative and Ethnic Studies teaching practices.
