

Stanford

Miguel Morillas

Postdoctoral Scholar, Education

Bio

BIO

Miguel Morillas is a sociologist and organizational researcher working at the intersection of migration and organization studies. He is based at SCANCOR and works with Professor Tomás R. Jiménez in the Department of Sociology. His research focuses on how institutions such as employers, organizations, and states recognize migrants' skills and life trajectories, and how migrants, in turn, reshape those institutions. Miguel is also interested in a range of organizational processes: domination, exclusion, worth valuation, ideological effects and, most recently, memory. He holds a PhD in Management and Organization from the Stockholm School of Economics. He was born and raised in Peru.

STANFORD ADVISORS

- Tomas Jimenez, Postdoctoral Research Mentor
- Walter Powell, Postdoctoral Faculty Sponsor

Research & Scholarship

RESEARCH INTERESTS

- Immigrants and Immigration
- Leadership and Organization
- Race and Ethnicity
- Research Methods
- Sociology