BIO

Taylor is an Audiology fellow on the research emphasis track. She is currently completing her Doctor of Audiology degree at Vanderbilt University. Her clinical interests include adult diagnostics and hearing aids, with additional interests in clinical research and improving audiologic care through data-driven approaches. Taylor is particularly interested in the intersection of clinical practice and research and plans to pursue a Ph.D. in Speech and Hearing Sciences following completion of her Au.D. Outside of audiology, Taylor enjoys spending time outdoors, FaceTiming with her family (especially their two golden retrievers, Aspen and Vail), and baking.
