Stanford

Andrea Morales Leal

Ph.D. Student in Psychology, admitted Autumn 2026

Bio

BIO

Andrea Morales Leal is a PhD student in Psychology at Stanford University. Her research examines how mindsets and psychological processes shape the way people experience and respond to changes in their health and bodies, with a particular interest in reproductive and hormonal health. Before coming to Stanford, she worked as a clinical psychologist at a public hospital in Mexico, where she developed psychological interventions and interdisciplinary approaches to care in infertility, postpartum mental health, and menopause.