BIO

Stephanie Fernandez is an MBA candidate at Stanford GSB and a member of the Stanford GSB Impact Fund and The MBA Fund. She spent six years at Google, starting in strategy and operations and most recently leading go-to-market for Google DeepMind's music models. Her specialty is taking new products to market in a way that resonates culturally and earns trust, especially in AI. At BAG Collective and Primary Ventures' Factor Fellowship, she found the work she wants to do more of: directing capital and resources to mission-driven founders, especially those building for undercapitalized markets. She focuses on AI, privacy, and consumer tech. She holds a B.A. in Political Science from Yale.
