

Garreth McCrudden

Lecturer, Legal Research and Writing

Garreth researches issues at the intersection of immigration law, family law, and constitutional law. He is particularly interested in studying how children and LGBTQ+ families interact with the immigration system. Part of Garreth's work involves empirical studies of immigration-law enforcement in the United States. His scholarship has been published in the Arizona State Law Journal, the UCLA Journal of Gender & Law, and the Berkeley Technology Law Journal.
