

Javad Khazaei

Affiliate, Graduate School of Business - Executive Education

Bio

BIO

Javad Khazaei is a technology and mobility executive with international experience leading complex product development, engineering, and commercialization across autonomous mobility, electric vehicles, clean technology, automotive, and digital platforms. At Glydways, he focuses on scaling autonomous transit systems and the infrastructure required for large-scale deployment.

His career spans leadership roles and major programs across the United States and Europe, including Proterra, Zalando, and Ford. His experience encompasses large-scale product development, hardware-software integration, product and program leadership, organizational transformation, and the commercialization of emerging technologies.

His interests include physical AI, autonomous systems, artificial intelligence, future mobility, infrastructure-scale technology, innovation strategy, and the intersection of technology, business, and large-scale transformation.