Stanford

Erin Heinemeyer, PsyD

Affiliate, Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences

Bio

BIO

Dr. Erin Heinemeyer is an Associate Professor at Palo Alto University and a faculty member in the PAU–Stanford PsyD Consortium. Her clinical interests include complex trauma and PTSD, functional neurological disorder, and personality, depressive, and anxiety disorders. As part of her role in the Consortium, she serves as Practicum Co-Director at the VA Palo Alto Outpatient Mental Health Clinic and provides clinical supervision to doctoral and postdoctoral trainees. She also teaches Biological Bases of Behavior, advises doctoral students, and serves on dissertation committees. In addition, she maintains a psychotherapy practice in the community through a private group practice. Dr. Heinemeyer earned her PsyD from the PGSP–Stanford Consortium, completed her internship at the VA Loma Linda Healthcare System, and her postdoctoral fellowship at Stanford University School of Medicine, Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Health Sciences.