

Stanford

Kari Hanson

Lecturer
Bioengineering

Bio

BIO

Kari is a former technology executive with a passion for entrepreneurship, innovation, business strategy and making the world a better place. Having worked as a coach, investor, advisor, board member and CFO, she enjoys empowering students and entrepreneurs to thrive in life, the classroom and the marketplace.

Kari is currently designing and co-teaching the ICME Analytics Accelerator, a project based research course for graduate students from multiple disciplines.

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS

- Lecturer, Institute for Computational and Mathematical Engineering (ICME)

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

- Coaching Certification, Coaching Transformation Academy (2020)
- MBA, New York University , Entrepreneurship (2000)
- BS, University of Nebraska - Lincoln , Actuarial Science (1992)

Teaching

COURSES

2021-22

- Analytics Accelerator: CME 217 (Win)
- Analytics Accelerator Seminar: CME 217A (Aut)

2020-21

- Analytics Accelerator: BIODS 217, CME 217 (Aut, Win)