BIO

Maritza has many years of higher education administrative experience, including serving as the Department Administrator for the History Department at Columbia University and the Executive Director for the Institute of Latin American Studies at Columbia. Prior to Columbia, she worked at New York University for 10 years. Maritza relocated to the Bay Area in 2017 with her family and made quick connections with Stanford. She joined Stanford's Center for Latin American Studies as Interim Program Coordinator until joining the English Department in 2018.
