I'm an internal medicine physician working to make technology better at healthcare systems. My background includes skills in data science, epidemiology, change management, service design, quality improvement, health policy, and management consulting. My experience comes from Stanford, Kaiser Permanente, Mayo Clinic, Geisinger, Johns Hopkins, McKinsey & Co, and the Maryland Department of Health. Currently, I focus on ontologies, decision analysis, human-computer interaction, and machine learning to develop technologies that help physicians make good clinical decisions more easily.
