

Haijing Wu Hallenbeck

Postdoctoral Research Fellow, Psychiatry

Bio

BIO

Haijing Hallenbeck, Ph.D., is a postdoctoral fellow at the National Center for PTSD at VA Palo Alto Health Care System, in conjunction with Stanford University School of Medicine. After completing her internship at VA Palo Alto Health Care System, she earned her Ph.D. in clinical psychology from Washington University in St. Louis. Haijing's graduate work focused on using mobile app technology for the assessment of depression. As a postdoctoral fellow, she is investigating how this technology can be adapted for purposes of treatment, particularly for PTSD and depression. She is interested in optimizing mobile apps to improve both mental health symptoms and psychosocial functioning for individuals.

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

- B.A., Vanderbilt University , Psychology (2012)
- Ph.D., Washington University in St. Louis , Clinical Psychology (2020)

STANFORD ADVISORS

- Craig Rosen, Postdoctoral Faculty Sponsor

LINKS

- VA Mobile Mental Health: <https://www.myvaapps.com/>