BIO

Jelena is a professor at Stanford University in the Developmental and Psychological Sciences program at the Stanford Graduate School of Education. She completed a Ph.D. in developmental psychology at the Institute of Child Development, University of Minnesota, and postdoctoral training in psychophysiology at the University of British Columbia. She is the recipient of a Jacobs Foundation Advanced Research Fellowship, a William T. Grant Foundation Scholar Award, and Early Career Research Contribution Award from the Society for Research in Child Development. Jelena's research examines how the interplay of children's physiological stress arousal, self-regulatory skills, and quality of caregiving environments contributes to their health, learning, and well-being over time. She also studies how caregivers' executive functions and emotion regulation skills contribute to teaching and parenting practices that promote or undermine child development. Her current work involves the development of novel, pragmatic, scalable assessments of executive functions, emotion regulation, and motivation.

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS

- Professor, Graduate School of Education
- Member, Bio-X
- Member, Wu Tsai Human Performance Alliance
- Member, Maternal & Child Health Research Institute (MCHRI)

ADMINISTRATIVE APPOINTMENTS

- Professor, Developmental and Psychological Sciences, Stanford Graduate School of Education, (2023- present)
- Director and PI, Stanford Project on Adaptation and Resilience in Kids (SPARK), (2009- present)
- Killam Postdoctoral Research Fellow, University of British Columbia, Human Early Learning Partnership (HELP), (2007-2009)

HONORS AND AWARDS

- Advanced Research Fellowship, Jacobs Foundation (2018-2020)
- Early Career Research Contribution Award, Society for Research in Child Development (2013)
- Scholar Award, William T. Grant Foundation (2012-2017)
- Global Academy Member, Canadian Institute for Advanced Research (2009-2014)
- Global Scholar, Canadian Institute for Advanced Research (2009-2011)

- Young Scholar, Jacobs Foundation Conference, Marbach, Germany (2009)
- Member, Interdisciplinary Resilience Research Network (2006-2007)
- Predoctoral Training Fellowship, National Institute of Mental Health (2006-2007)
- CEHD Research Award, University of Minnesota (2004-2006)
- Hauge Fellowship, University of Minnesota (2004-2005)
- Eva O. Miller Fellowship, University of Minnesota (2003-2004)
- Global Supplementary Grant, Open Society Institute (2002-2003)
- Marian Radke Yarrow Fellowship, University of Minnesota (2002-2003)
- Rena Ratte Award (highest honor to one graduating senior), Lewis and Clark College (2002)
- Robert B. Pamplin Fellowship and Honor Society, Lewis and Clark College (1999-2002)

BOARDS, ADVISORY COMMITTEES, PROFESSIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

- Steering Committee Member, Stanford's Center for Education Policy Analysis (2017 - present)
- Advisory Board Member, Stanford's Catalyst for Collaborative Solutions (2017 - present)
- Advisory Board Member, John W. Gardner Center for Youth and their Communities (2017 - present)

PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION

- Ph.D., Institute of Child Development, University of Minnesota , Developmental Psychology, minor in Statistics (2007)
- M.A., Institute of Child Development, University of Minnesota , Developmental Psychology (2005)
- B.A., Lewis & Clark College , Psychology (2002)

CURRENT RESEARCH AND SCHOLARLY INTERESTS

The Stanford Project on Adaptation and Resilience in Kids — the SPARK Lab — seeks to understand how adversity influences children's adaptation across various domains of functioning, ranging from school engagement and academic competence to positive peer relationships and prosocial behaviors. We strive to identify the biological, behavioral, and environmental processes that enable some disadvantaged children to demonstrate remarkable resilience, while placing others at risk for maladaptive outcomes, such as symptoms of anxiety and depression or disruptive behaviors.

We study how the interplay between children's biological sensitivity and the quality of the environments in which they grow and learn shapes children's health and well-being. In addition, we study how self-regulatory skills help children cope with daily challenges by enabling them to control their thoughts, feelings, and behaviors. Our work aims to identify how families and teachers can help children with differing biological reactivity profiles and self-regulatory capacities succeed over time.

Our research has important implications for children who come from diverse family, socio-economic, and ethnic backgrounds. We hope to apply our research findings to the design and implementation of prevention and intervention programs aimed at improving children's lives.
