Christian Figueroa is an experienced political activist, communications professional, engineer, and B.A. candidate studying history at Stanford University.

Most notably, Christian was an appointed Kamala Harris Party Leader/Elected Official Delegate to the 2024 Democratic National Convention, representing his home state of California and serving as a youth surrogate for local and national media coverage, including The New York Times, NPR Weekend Edition, PBS NewsHour, and local radio, television and print.

At Stanford, he is an appointed committee member in the Office of the Provost and the Office of Community Standards, has academic interests in both history and communication, and has served in prominent University positions, including as the Flag Bearer of the Inauguration of Stanford University's 13th President Jonathan Levin and as a Student Assistant to Paul Brest, Former Dean of Stanford Law School. He has often been featured in the Stanford Report, the University's official news publication.

Professionally, he has interned in the Office of Los Angeles Mayor Karen Bass, Stanford University, the California Democratic Party and The Boeing Company. He is notable on social media and news media for his political and activist involvement.
