

Stanford

Mary Reader

Ph.D. Student in Economics, admitted Autumn 2023

 Curriculum Vitae available Online

Bio

BIO

I am a PhD student in Economics at Stanford and a Visiting Fellow at STICERD at the London School of Economics. My research interests lie in public, health and labor economics, with a particular focus on inequality.

Prior to joining Stanford, I worked as a Pre-Doctoral Research Assistant at the LSE's Hub for Equal Representation in the Economy. I completed a Master of Public Administration at the LSE (Distinction) and a BA in Philosophy, Politics and Economics at the University of Oxford (First-Class).

You can find out more about my latest research on my website: maryreader.com

LINKS

- Personal website: <https://maryreader.com>

Publications

PUBLICATIONS

- The infant health effects of starting universal child benefits in pregnancy: Evidence from England and Wales JOURNAL OF HEALTH ECONOMICS
Reader, M.
2023; 89: 102751
- Capping welfare payments for workless families increases employment and economic inactivity: Evidence from the UK's benefit cap INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF SOCIAL WELFARE
Reeves, A., Fransham, M., Stewart, K., Reader, M., Patrick, R.
2024