Keith Iverson

IT/Web Manager, Stanford Doerr School of Sustainability - Dean's Office

Keith is responsible for the IT and Web functions at the Stanford Woods Institute. He also supports the Institute's collaborations and fellows.

Keith spent 10 years as the Vice President of IT for a Silicon Valley firm that provided securities history information and services to Wall Street firms. There, he built the entire IT function for the company - systems, data center, databases and network. He also served as a Peace Corps Volunteer for 3 1/2 years in the West African country of Niger. While serving as a volunteer he built a cooperative pharmacy, grain and cereal cooperatives, installed speed bumps in a nearby market town and opened regional offices for Peace Corps in the far reaches of the country. He is an avid trail/distance runner. Keith graduated from UCLA with a degree in Sociology and a minor in Business Administration.
