Stanford

Lisa Ann Villarreal

Undergraduate Advising Director, Academic Support Programs, Academic Advising Operations

Bio

BIO

Lisa works as an Undergraduate Advising Director, supporting primarily returning students and off-campus students. She also has a special interest in supporting FLI students. Before coming (back) to Stanford, she served as Dean of Learning Resources at Menlo College, overseeing programs for academic support and student success. She spent her early career teaching writing and literature at Bay Area institutions including Stanford, Notre Dame de Namur University, San Francisco State University, and Menlo College, as well as serving as a consultant in the writing centers at NDNU and Menlo. She holds a Ph.D. in Comparative Literature from Stanford and a bachelor's degree in French, English, Philosophy, and International Studies from Loyola University Chicago.

CURRENT ROLE AT STANFORD

Undergraduate Advising Director, Academic Support Programs