Stanford

Raphael Bonetti

Postdoctoral Scholar, Psychology

Bio

BIO

Raphaël Bonetti is a sport psychologist, PhD candidate, and visiting researcher at Stanford University.

His research focuses on digital psychological interventions for young elite athletes, examining how remote programs can impact mental skills, while also supporting broader aspects of personality development and personal narratives within high-performance sporting environments.

STANFORD ADVISORS

- James Gross, Postdoctoral Faculty Sponsor