

Mason Yearian

Professor of Physics, Emeritus

Bio

BIO

Mason received his PhD in physics at Stanford University. Later, he served as an assistant professor, associate professor, and professor at Stanford. Past research includes developing detectors for X-ray and gamma ray astronomy, and work on the GRO/EGRET experiments. Mason also developed a computer-based curriculum for teaching introductory physics courses in high schools and universities.

ACADEMIC APPOINTMENTS

- Emeritus Faculty, Acad Council, Physics