

Stanford

Lisel Alice Murdock-Perriera

- Ph.D. Student in Education, admitted Autumn 2014
- Ph.D. Minor, Psychology
- Other Tech - Graduate, Graduate School of Education

Bio

BIO

Lisel Murdock is a doctoral student in Language, Literacy, and English Education. She earned an A.B. in Sociology and English from Dartmouth College and an M.S. in Early Childhood General and Special Education from Bank Street College. Prior to Stanford, she taught elementary school for students struggling with speech and language as well as leading a tutoring program for low-income students struggling with mathematics in Manhattan for four years. Working with Maren Aukerman, her research interests are in reading comprehension, motivation, and linguistic varietal understanding in the elementary classroom.

HONORS AND AWARDS

- Mabry Scholarship for the Most Promising Student Pursuing Graduate Studies in a Related Field, Dartmouth College Sociology Department (2009)
- Dean of Faculty Senior Graduate Fellowship, Dartmouth College (2009)
- Goldberg/Ruberman Scholarship for the potential to become an exceptional educator, Bank Street College of Education (2010)
- Summa cum Laude, Dartmouth College (2009)

EDUCATION AND CERTIFICATIONS

- Certified Teacher, New York State , Early Childhood Special Education (2012)
- Certified Teacher, New York State , Early Childhood General Education (2012)
- M.S., Bank Street College of Education , Early Childhood General and Special Education (2012)
- A.B, Dartmouth College , Sociology & English with Creative Writing Emphasis (2009)

Research & Scholarship

PROJECTS

- Common Core State Standards (CCSS) Instructional Leadership Corps (ICL) - Stanford Center for Opportunity Policy in Education (SCOPE)

Professional

WORK EXPERIENCE

- Classroom Teacher - The Parkside School. New York, NY (9/1/2011 - 6/1/2014)
- Gift of Math Teacher - New York City Public Schools/ Jewish Community Center Manhattan (9/2012 - 8/2014)

Publications

PUBLICATIONS

- Prison Break: The Women's Prison Project Dartmouth Alumni Magazine
Murdock, L. A.
2007