Paula is the Undergraduate Advising Director for Coterminal Degree Programs in Academic Advising. In addition to building tools and other supports to enhance advising for the coterminal degrees program at Stanford, she refines policy, procedure, and programming for potential and current coterminals.

Originally from the suburbs of Chicago, Paula called Saint Louis, MO home for 14 years prior to relocating to the area in September 2016. She has supported students as an advisor and policy expert at multiple institutions since 1999. Her graduate work was in clinical psychology, and prior to beginning her role at Stanford, she taught a first year seminar class about zombies.
